A VALUABLE RELIC. ADDIES THE Mr. Lucius H. Smith bas an are that is not only a curiosity, but has a history As near as he can trace, it was brought over by Columbus when he was roaming around loose, looking for a place to stand upon, and it was stolen by some Indians soon after the old navigator landed, and brought west; and as it was something out of the ordinary way of axes, it was kept something sacred, and was handed down, as a dowry with the oldest Indian princess upon to marriage. It thus got into the hands of the pale face brothers. This memorable axe is also supposed to sustain a close relationship to the "little hatchet" with which G. Washington the "little hatchet" with which G. Washington, Esq., is popularly supposed to have cut his way through a cherry tree into the White House, or rather the Presidency of the country Columbus established. Mr. Smith is as proud of his axe as he is of his direct descent from the celebrated Mr. John Smith, who is also reported to have met with a lively incident in which certain Indians threatened to take a rather hast lifting part.

THE MAMMONTH RUSSIAN SUN-PLOWER. Col. Hoyt, of Turnpike, brought to our office this morning, a sun-flower of the above variety, which was macemoth sure enough. It measured full twelve inches across its face, and its seed were as large as pumpkin seed. The seeds of the sunflower furnish the very best food for fowls, and is good for stock. A fifteencent package of seed, produced for Col. Hoyt, nearly five bushels, which shows an enormous yield for the outlay. According to the yield on the land planted this season. Col. Hoyt says one age, would season, Col. Hoyt says one acre would produce one hundred and fifty bushels of seed. This surely would pay. The seed sell in Northern markets for fort. cents a quart.

PARTHENIA, THE GREEK MAIDEN, IN INGOMAR.

The most beautiful play ever seen in this city, and one of the best presented in this century will be repeated to-night at the request of many citizens. Miss Firmin's great creation of Parthenia is charming in its simplicity and artlessness. Mr. Harcourt as the Barbarian is manly and attractive. The poetry of the whole play is most complete and winning. The merits of the play and the acting alone deserve a
